Les images suivantes ont été reproduites avec le plus grand soin, compte tenu de la condition et de la netteté de l'exemplaire filmé, et en conformité avec les conditions du contrat de filmage.

Les exemplaires originaux dont la couverture en papier est imprimée sont filmés en commençant par le premier plat et en terminant soit par la dernière page qui comporte une empreinte d'impression ou d'illustration, soit par le second plat, selon le cas. Tous les autres exemplaires

TO THE PUBLIC.

In presenting the annexed CATALOGUE OF STANDARD WORKS, the several publishers herein represented beg to say a passing word to the public, from whom they have hitherto long, and trust as continuously hereafter, to obtain a liberal support.

On the advantages of a good library in the present day little need be spoken. Society of every grade admits its necessity; ordinary intelligence seeks for it in every department; liberal learning demands it, and social progress and morality alike make it their monitor and guide. The library, in a word, is the great "essential of the century;" with it, mind and matter are invested with new life and energy; without it, all vigor droops and advancement of whatever kind becomes stagnate and inert.

The works put forth by Blackie & Sons, Glasgow; Pallarton & Co., Edinburgh; the London Publishing Company (London, Eng.); Johnson, Fry & Co., New York; and Betts & Co., Hartford, Conn., herein enumerated, are of established fame on both continents, and have long been pre-eminent and unapproached in the great race of competition with other houses of the kind. In short, they have out-distanced all rivals. Their Catalogue comprises all the leading modern treatises in the wide field of Literature, Science, Philosophy, Poetry and Religion. The theologian and the mechanic, the artist and the farmer, the commercial man and the laborer, are fully and completely represented. Each will find in the appended list some work that will smooth the rough places of his daily routine—some treatise at once a companion and an unerring guide.

But, perhaps, the most conspicuous feature in the companies named, and that which, next to the perfection of their works, commends them to the public in general, is the excellent facility afforded for the acquirement of a library. All works are issued, at option of the party, in volume or in single number, varying

BRANCH ESTABLISHMENTS AT

OTTAWA, TORONTO, and HALIFAX, N.S.

CATALOGUE.

1. Altar of the Household;

Being a series of Prayers, and selections from the Scriptures, for Domestic Worship for every morning and evening in the year. Edited by the Rev. Dr. Harris, author of "Mammon," "The Great Teacher," "Pre-Adamite Earth," &c., &c.; with an Introduction by the Rev. W. Lindsay Alexander, D. D.; in 26 parts, at 25 cents each; royal 4to size.—(L. P. Co.)

2. The Imperial Atlas of Modern Geography;

A series of One Hundred carefully Coloured Maps, embracing the most recent Discoveries, and the latest Political Divisions of Territory in all parts of the World. Compiled from the most authentic sources, under the supervision of W. G. Blackie, Ph. D., F.R.G.S., Editor of the "Imperial Gazetteer." With an Index, containing references to nearly 120,000 Places. Complete in 36 parts, 62½c. each.

In fullness and accuracy of information, in largeness of scale, in distinctness of engraving and beauty of execution, the "Imperial Atlas" will compare favourably with the most costly works of the kind extant, while it presents many useful features entirely peculiar to itself. Its size is very convenient, being an Imperial quarto, the maps measuring 23 inches by 16, and the book, when closed, 15 inches by 13 inches. The series of maps extends to seventy-eight sheets, comprising above One Hundred different maps. The main requisites of a good Atlas are—accuracy, the most recent information, and legibility; these requisites, it is believed, the "Imperial Atlas" eminently possesses.

"Its great merits will be found to increase in number exactly in proportion to the length of time and attention with which its multitudinous details are studied."—Army and Navy Gazette.—(B. & Son.)

3. Nicolson's Dictionary of Architecture.

Edited by E. Lomas, C.E., and T. Gonyon, Architect, C.E.; and illustrated by upwards of 1,000 working drawings. Complete in 60 parts, at 25c. each.—(L. P. Co.)

4. Villa and Cottage Architecture.

In 30 parts, at 62½c. each, or half morocco, marbled edge, $16.50.

Select examples of Country and Suburban Residences recently erected from the Designs of the following Architects:—

RANKS & BARRY.
JOHN BAIRD, GLASGOW.
EWAN CHRISTIAN, LONDON.
DAVID COUBIN, EDINBURGH.
H. A. DARBISHIRE, LONDON.
JOHN GORDON, GLASGOW.
HINE & EVANS, NOTTINGHAM.

A. & G. THOMSON, GLASGOW.
GEORGE TRUEFITT, LONDON.
JAMES C. WALKER, EDINBURGH.
S. DUTTON WALKER, NOTTINGHAM.
EDWARD WALTERS, MANCHESTER.

With a Descriptive Notice of each Set of Plans.

This work is intended to supply a selected series of Plans of Houses which have been erected of late years from designs by Architects of acknowledged position and ability. The Buildings illustrated have been selected for excellence in Design, convenience of Arrangement, and Reasonableness of Cost, and will generally consist of houses of moderate dimensions erected at a price ranging from £500 to £25,000. The locality of each building, the name of the Architect, and the date of erection, are regularly given; and a description of the site, the internal arrangements, materials, and manner of construction, accompanies each set of plans; together with a statement of the actual cost.

The Illustrations consist of finely-executed Engravings of Plans, Elevations, and Sections, carefully reduced to scale from the working Drawings, the scale for the principal elevations being $\frac{1}{2}$ inch to 10 feet, and for the ground plans and minor elevations $\frac{1}{4}$ inch to 10 feet. By presenting the ground plans and minor elevations on a less scale than the principal elevations, it has been found practicable materially to increase the number of the buildings illustrated, without increasing in a corresponding degree the price of the work. Wherever it is found requisite or desirable, the whole four sides of a house are shown; and Perspective Views and Enlarged Drawings of the Ornamental and Constructive details are added as occasion requires.

"Such a publication as this cannot but be most suggestive to all who are directly or indirectly connected with domestic architecture. The plates are well engraved."—Art Journal.

"Very many of the designs are of interest, and they all derive value from the estimate of cost not being a figural one, but arrived at by the matter-of-fact process of producing receipts bills."—The Building News.

"This publication will be found of great service, not merely as affording suggestions for architects and builders, but as furnishing elevations and designs from which a person about to build may select those which best suit their taste and their requirements."—Observer.—(B. & Son.)

5. Morton's Cyclopaedia of Agriculture.

Practical and Scientific: in which the Theory, the Art, and the Business of Farming, in all their Departments, are thoroughly and practically treated. By upwards of Fifty of the most eminent Farmers, Land Agents, and Scientific Men of the day. Edited by J. C. Morton. With above Eighteen Hundred Illustrative Figures on Wood and Steel. In 96 parts, 6s.6d. each.

Pronounced by the best judges to be the most comprehensive work on British agriculture that has ever appeared. It felicitously unites the practical and scientific knowledge of our best agriculturists.

"A more comprehensive work on British agriculture, and one uniting so completely the practical and scientific knowledge of our best agriculturists, has never before appeared."—Economist.—(B. & Son.)

6. The Agriculturist's Assistant;

A Manual of Principles, Rules, and Tables, of constant use in all calculations incident to the occupation and improvement of land, and especially in those involved in payment by piece-work. By John Ewart, Land-Surveyor and Agricultural Engineer. Plates and Qu. Second Edition, enlarged and improved. Foolscap 8vo., cloth. $1.00.

"This manual we have inspected once and again, and on every occasion with an enhanced opinion of the extensive information and exhaustive patience necessary to its production, and of its great value to every person interested in agriculture."—Westminster Journal.—(B. & Son.)

7. The Agriculturist's Calculator;

A series of Forty-Five Tables for Land Measuring, Draining, Manuring, Planting, Weight of Hay and Cattle by Measurement, Building, &c., forming a complete Ready-Reckoner for all engaged in Agriculture. Tenth Edition. Cloth. $2.50.

"I have looked over the tables in your 'Agriculturist's Calculator,' and, without hesitation, give it my opinion that the work will be of the greatest advantage to all connected with land. Every proprietor, tenant, and farmer should have it."—THOMAS BALMER, Commissioner for his Grace the Duke of Richmond. —(B. & Son.)

8. British Schools of Art;

A Selection of examples engraved in line by eminent Artists. Complete in 30 parts, 60 cents each —(V. & Co.)

9. Gallery of Arts.

This work comprises nearly Four Thousand Wood Engravings, illustrating the useful Arts and Manufactures, as practised in different countries; also, Fine Arts, as exhibited in Architecture, Sculpture, Painting, &c. Complete in 30 parts, 25 cents each.—(L. P. Co.)

FAMILY BIBLES.

10. The Imperial Family Bible,

Containing the Old and New Testaments, according to the most correct copies of the Authorised Version. With many Thousand Critical, Explanatory, and Practical Notes; also, References, Readings, Chronological Tables, and Indexes. Illustrated by a choice series of Historical Designs, and Authentic Views of important Bible Localities. In 36 parts, Imperial 4to., 69s. each; or one large vol., best morocco plain, gilt edges, sewed flexible, $34.00; also, 12 divisions, $1.89 each.

The notes, amounting to many thousands in number, are either original or selected from the great commentators and illustrators of the Scriptures. Their object is to bring out, as far as possible, the true force and meaning of the text; and though the space they occupy is apparently small, they would, if printed in the usual form, exhibit an amount of matter, and certainly of information, much greater than is usually afforded in Family Commentaries.

The engraved illustrations, 74 in number, consist of a series of historical designs, selected from the works of the ancient and modern masters, and of views of important Bible localities from authentic drawings; the whole engraved in the most finished manner.

"It is a noble and beautiful edition of the Sacred Volume. No copy has ever been placed before us distinguished by so many excellencies."—Art Journal.

"This is the most splendid Bible which it has ever been our good fortune to see published."—Windsor and Eton Express—(B. & Son.)

11. The Comprehensive Family Bible,

Containing the Old and New Testaments, with copious Critical and Explanatory Notes, and Practical Reflections; also, References, Readings, Chronological and other Tables. By David Davidson, LL.D. With numerous historical and landscape illustrations and maps. Complete in 36 parts, super-royal 4to., 50s. each. Full morocco, plain gilt edge, 30s.; extra gilt, 32s.

The illustrations will be found to have a direct relation to the text, and to be descriptive of Bible localities or Bible history. The commentary is "judicious and instructive," and the numerous readings and chronological tables cannot fail to assist the reader in his study of holy writ.

"I have carefully examined Dr. Davidson's 'Comprehensive Family Bible,' and cordially recommend it as highly calculated to promote the edification of the domestic circle generally, as well as to afford satisfaction to individual inquirers on particular points of sacred science."—Rev. B. Hanson, Highbury College—(B. & Son.)

12. The Family Devotional Bible.

Ninety-third Thousand. With copious Notes and Reflections on each Chapter of the Old and New Testament, and valuable References and General Readings. By the Rev. Matthew Henry. This edition is printed from the authorised English version, in a bold, clear type, and is rendered more complete by a copious Index, the Psalms of David in Metre, and the Geography of the Holy Land, illustrated with maps. In super-royal 4to., complete in 75 parts at 95 cents, and 35 at 75 cents; each part at 95 cents illustrated with one, and the parts at 75 cents each with three, beautiful steel engravings.—(L. P. & F. Co.)

13. Jamieson's Family Bible,

With an Explanatory and Practical Commentary, by the Rev. Robert Jamieson, D.D. Complete in 40 1/2 parts, at 50 cents each.—(V. & Co.)

14. Brown's Self-Interpreting Bible,

With an Introduction, copious Marginal References, and Notes Explanatory and Practical; and several Thousand additional Notes, explaining difficult texts, and reconciling seeming contradictions. By the Rev. Henry Cook, D.D., LL.D., Belfast. Illustrated by Historical Designs, and a series of views of Cities, Rivers, Mountains, &c., of Bible Lands—Forty-seven Plates in all. In 46 parts, royal 4to., 35 cents each. Psalms, 1 part, 50 cents.—(B. & Son.)

15. Brown's Popular Family Bible.

The Self-Interpreting Bible complete and unabridged. With many additional Notes, References and Readings; also, Memoir of the Author, and Barr's Index of Subjects. Illustrated by Historical designs and family register. In 80 parts, demy 4to., 25 cents each; 1 vol., grained burr, gilt edges, $3.50; morocco plain, gilt edges, $9.50; morocco extra, gilt edges, $10.50. The Metre Psalms, 250 additional.—(B. & Son.)

16. Straighton's Commentary Bible.

After Scott, Henry, Clarke, Barnes, &c., able commentators. 40 parts at 25 cents each.—(L. P. Co.)

17. Fletcher's Devotional Family Bible.

Complete in 42 parts, 50 cents each.—(V. & Co.)

18. Brown's Illustrated Family Bible,

With Notes and Marginal References. By the Rev. John Brown, of Haddington. Full bound, gilt edges, $12.00.—(Full. & Co.)

19. Brown's Folio Family Bible,

With copious Notes and Commentary, beautifully illustrated. Complete in 33 parts, at 50 cents each, or, with the Apocrypha, 4 parts, at 50 cents extra.—(J. F. & Co.)

20. Douay and Rhimes' Family Bible.

Translated from the Latin Vulgate, with a series of beautiful illustrations, complete in about 26 parts, at 50 cents each.—(J. F. & Co.)

N. C. DUFF, PUBLISHERS' AGENT.

21. Barnes' Notes on the Old Testament.

Books of Job, Isaiah, and Daniel. With Additional Prefaces and Notes, and Appendices. Engravings on steel, and above 150 illustrations on wood, most of them in no other edition. Job, 1 vol., Cloth, $1.50; Isaiah, 2 vols., $2.50; Daniel, 1 vol., $1.00; or the set, $4.50.

22. Barnes' Notes on the New Testament.

Illustrated and Annotated edition. With 20 steel plates, 31 maps and plans, and 94 engravings on wood, in all sixty-seven separate plates, from the most authentic materials. Illustrating principal scripture scenes, and sites of celebrated Cities, Towns, &c. In 2 double vols., post 8vo., $1.50 each; and one at $1.12, or the set, $2.50.

Mr. Barnes writes:—"The work is beautifully set up, and is in that respect very gratifying to me. I feel particularly gratified with the plates; they are exceedingly beautiful, and in my view greatly increase the value of the work."

23. Treatises on Practical Religion.

By Richard Baxter. Including the Saints' Everlasting Rest, Divine Life, Treatise on Conversion, Call to the Unconverted, Directions to a Sound Conversion, Benefits of Self-Knowledge, Dying Thoughts, &c. With Memoir and Portrait. Cloth, $4.75.—(B. & Son.)

31. Matthew Henry's Commentary.

An exposition of all the books of the Old and New Testaments, with practical Remarks and Observations. By Matthew Henry, Minister of the Gospel. Reprinted from the author's own editions. Complete in 23 parts, 50 cents each; or with the Historical and Landscape plates, 60 in all, 10 parts extra, 50 cents each. It will also be issued in divisions, at $1.50 each. On completion of the work, every subscriber shall have the choice of one or other of the following engravings, for which 12½ cents will be charged.

Exposure of Moses.—Size, 19½ in. by 14½.

Miriam's Triumphant Song.—Size 16½ inches by 13½ inches.

A View of Jerusalem in its present state. 22½ inches by 14½ inches.

Matthew Henry's Commentary has preserved its popularity for upwards of a century and a half, and is held at the present day in equal repute among all sects or denominations of Christians. It owes its popularity in the main to the practical character of its observations, and their freedom from sectarian prejudices. It is pre-eminently a commentary to be read and studied by the devout Christian as distinguished from one to be consulted by the critic or scholar. Robert Hall recommends the reader "to read through the work regularly. This is the way," he adds, "to read Matthew Henry. I discover new beauties in him every day that are not obvious when reading detached portions."

This Edition presents a complete and accurate reprint of Henry's admirable work. It is printed with new type, and the matter so arranged that the commentary is attached to the particular passage it illustrates, and not carried over page after page to the great confusion of the reader. To render the division still clearer the text is printed in a smaller though perfectly distinct and legible type.

It forms three handsome vols. royal 4to, and is accompanied by a finely engraved portrait of the author.—(B. & Son.)

32. An Exposition of the Confession of Faith

Of the Westminster Assembly of Divines; with some account of the Errors and Heresies against which the statements in the Confession are directed. By Robert Shaw, D.D., Whitburn. And an introductory Essay by the Rev. W. M. Hetherington, LL.D. Foolscep Eve, cloth, 75 cents.—(B. & Son.)

33. The Ten Years' Conflict,

Being the History of the Disruption of the Church of Scotland. By the Rev. Robert Buchanan, D.D. Illustrated with portraits on steel and designs on wood. Two vols. square 8vo, cloth, $3.50. The Library Edition, elegantly printed in large type, 2 vols. demy 8vo, cloth, $5.50.

These interesting volumes commemorate and describe what has justly been called "one of the most remarkable events in modern times." Dr. Buchanan's History will long continue the standard authority on the subject.

"It is a history for the Church and for future ages, and not merely for a single sect or for the present time; it is not for a party, but for mankind."—Scottish Guardian.—(B. & Son.)

34. The Twofold Concordance,

To the Words and Subjects of the Holy Bible; including a Concise Dictionary, a Chronological Arrangement of the Sacred Narrative, and other tales designed to facilitate the consultation and study of the Sacred Scriptures. Bound in cloth, $2.50.

The first part of this work consists of a careful condensation of Cruden's well-known Concordance; the second, of a complete Biblical Index and Concise Dictionary of the Bible, by the Rev. John Barr, in which the various persons, places, and subjects mentioned in the Scriptures are accurately referred to, and briefly explained.—(B. & Son.)

35. Cruden's Concordance to the Sacred Scriptures.

With a memoir and portrait of the author. Post 8vo., bound in cloth, $1.75.

A clearly printed edition of a work whose merits have been confirmed by the approval of successive generations of readers. To render it a handy volume, it has been slightly condensed from the original, but contains all that is really valuable.—(B. & Son.)

36. Comstock's Natural Philosophy.

Edited and largely augmented, by R. D. Hoblyn, M. A., Oxon. Illustrated by nearly 300 engravings on wood. Fifth edition, foolscap 8vo., cloth, $1.00.

A popular manual of Natural Philosophy, in which are clearly explained the principles of Heat, Mechanics, Hydrostatics, Hydraulics, Pneumatics, the Steam Engine, Acoustics, Optics, Astronomy, Electricity, Magnetism, &c. Questions for examination are appended to each chapter, and numerous interesting Problems add to the value of this compact little volume. It will be found an admirable guide to the elements of physical science.—(B. & Son.)

37. A Catechism for Young Communicants.

Designed to assist them in forming Scriptural views of the Lord's Supper. With an Address to Young Persons not yet Communicants. By the Rev. John Barr. 18mo., sewed, 10c.—(B. & Son.)

38. A Catechism on Christian Baptism.

Designed to assist young parents in forming Scriptural views of this Ordinance. With an address to Young Parents. By the Rev. John Barr. 18mo., sewed, 10c.—(B. & Son.)

39. The Chinese Empire.

Illustrated in a series of nearly 200 steel engravings; being views from original Sketches of the Scenery, Architecture, Social Habits, &c., of the Chinese Nation. By Thomas Allom, Esq. With historical and descriptive letter-press, by Rev. G. N. Wright, M. A., and a succinct account and history of China. Complete in 42 parts, 25c.—(L. P. Co.)

40. Canadian Scenery.

A series of 120 beautifully executed Engravings on Steel, from drawings by the late W. M. Bartlett, in 30 parts, at 25c. each.

"This work, illustrative of the beautiful and sublime scenery of our North American colony, now lies before us, and the engravings present us with a striking picture of this home of our emigrated brethren."—Manchester Advertiser.—(V. & Co.)

41. The Carpenter and Joiner's Assistant.

By James Newlands, Borough Engineer of Liverpool. Being a Comprehensive Treatise on the selection, preparation, and strength of Materials, and the mechanical principles of Framing, with their applications in Carpentry, Joinery, and Hand Railing; also, a course of instruction in Practical Geometry, Geometrical Lines, Drawing, Projection, and Perspective, and an Illustrated Glossary of Terms used in Architecture and Building. Illustrated by one hundred and fifteen engraved plates, and many hundred engravings on wood, comprising examples of some of the best timber construction in Great Britain, on the Continent of Europe, and in America. Complete in 24 parts, super-royal 4to, 50c. each; or 1 vol. half morocco, $15.60.

This publication provides in a compendious form, and in plain language, a complete and practical course of instruction in the principles of Carpentry and Joinery, with descriptions and representations of a selection of works actually executed, to illustrate the state of these arts at the present time.

The work is divided into eight Parts. The First Part is occupied with so much of Practical Geometry as is required in the daily practice of the draughtsman. Part Second teaches the nature and use of the various kinds of Drawing Instruments. Part Third is devoted to Stereography, comprehending the Projection of Lines, Surfaces, and Solids, and the practical application of this Projection. Part Four treats of Timber, how to fell, square, and prepare it, and the uses and properties, strength, nature, and adaptations of the various kinds of Timber. Part Five exemplifies the construction of timber-roofs, domes, spires, floors, partitions, bridges, houses, gates, &c. Part Six is devoted to the illustration of Joinery. Part Seven to the construction of Stairs, Staircases, and Hand-Railings. And Part Eight instructs the student in the projections of Shadows, the preparation of finished Drawings, and in Perspective and Isometrical Projection. A glossary of terms used in Architecture and Building, which is copiously illustrated, completes the work.

"We know of no treatise on Carpentry and Joinery which at all approaches this in merit. We strongly urge our practical mechanics to obtain and study it."—Mechanics' Magazine.—(B. & Son.)

42. Cyclopædia of Useful Arts.

Mechanics' Manufactures, Mining, and Civil Engineering, illustrated with upwards of 2,500 engravings on steel and wood. Edited by Charles Tomlinson. In 33 parts, at 50c. each.—(V. & Co.)

43. Chambers' Encyclopædia.

136 parts, at 20c. each; or 10 vols., cloth, $3.50 each.—(Lipp. & Co.)

44. The Christian Cyclopædia;

Or Repertory of Biblical and Theological Literature. By the Rev. James Gardner, M.D., A.M. With numerous Engravings. New and revised edition, with supplement, and index of Scripture Passages, illustrated. In 21 parts, super royal, 8vo., 25c. each; cloth, $5.75.

This work is intended to furnish the reader with a popular summary of what has hitherto been written on those subjects which are involved in, or closely allied to, Christianity. It embraces in its plan a comprehensive digest of Christian Literature and Biography, and the general features both of a Biblical and Theological Dictionary.—(E. & Son.)

45. The Voyages of Captain Cook,

The First Discoverer of the Gold Regions, New Zealand, &c. A new and complete edition, illustrated with maps and numerous engravings on wood and steel; with the present state of Australia and the Gold Regions, New Zealand, the South Sea Islands, &c. In 48 parts, at 25c. each, containing 40 pages of letter-press.—(L. P. Co.)

46. Chambers' Cyclopaedia of English Literature.

2 vols., cloth, $8.00. This work comprises the best productions of British and American writers. No library is complete without it.—(L. & Co.)

47. Circle of the Sciences :

A Cyclopaedia of Experimental, Chemical, Mathematical and Mechanical Philosophy, and Natural History; with an Introductory Discourse on the Objects, Pleasures, and Advantages of Science. By Henry Lord Brougham, D.C.L., F.R.S., &c. Edited by James Wyld, Author of the "Magic of Science," "Shells and their Inhabitants," "Fossils," "Useful Plants," &c. Complete in 70 parts, at 25c. each; bound half calf, 2 vols., $22.50.

This comprehensive work embraces every department of Physical, Chemical, Mathematical, and Natural Science. Amongst the authors of the various sections, are Professors Ansted, Owen, Tennant, and Young; Drs. Bushnan, Lethaby, W. S. Dallas, Esq., and others now holding the highest position in the scientific world. The entire publication is so arranged that each section is introductory to those following; and thus a study of the complete Works will give an extensive acquaintance with the system of General Science.

It is equally intended for the Home Student, the Artisan, and Practical man; and for those who would study Science as a branch of a liberal education. All unnecessary technicalities are avoided, and hence one great hindrance to the pursuit of Science is removed. The subjects are illustrated by many thousand steel and wood engravings, and diagrams; with portraits of the leading celebrities in Science.

The sections include Heat; Light, Optical Instruments, Photography; Electricity, Magnetism; Electro Magnetism, and the Telegraph; Electro-Metallurgy; Acoustics; Chemistry (Organic and Inorganic); Arithmetic, Algebra, Geometry, Trigonometry, Tables of Logarithms of Natural Numbers, Sines, Tangents, &c.; Mechanics, including the Steam Engine, Pneumatics, and Hydrostatics; Astronomy; Navigation; Meteorology; Comparative Physiology and Anatomy; Zoology; Ethnology; Botany; Crystallography; Mineralogy; and Geology. A Discourse, by Lord Brougham, on the Objects, Pleasures and Advantages of Sciences, affords a general introduction to the entire Work.

Every endeavour has been made to render the Work complete in all its details, and accurate as a Book of Reference and for consulting. It is no exaggeration to say, that in point of extensiveness and range of subject, precision in its teaching, and amplitude in illustration, it is superior to any other scientific work which has yet appeared.

The following exhibits a synopsis of the entire Work; and the name of the author of each section is also given:—

Author of "The People, or South Country of Scripture."

"For the student who is anxious to possess a Dictionary of the Bible, characterized by simple though not ordinary learning, and by a distinctive and accurate attachment to Evangelical truth, Dr. Fairbairn's work stands foremost, if not alone. It is a treasury not only of Biblical information, but also of the whole science of divinity."—Our Own People.

"We know of no work more deserving of the widest patronage, or that will better repay the purchaser for his outlay."—Wesleyan Times.

"We can speak of it in the highest terms."—The Dial.

"Messrs. Blackie are to be congratulated on this addition to their far-famed 'Imperial' Dictionary. They seem here, as in previous publications of the series, to have found the happy medium between technical erudition and popular common-place."—The Freeman.

"The difficulties and objections which modern rationalism has raised against certain parts of the Scripture are constantly kept in view in the treatment of the several parts. . . . We should rejoice in knowing that such a help to their studies was in the hands of every young clergyman."—Clarendon Journal.—(B. & Son.)

49. The Imperial Dictionary,

English, Technological, and Scientific; adapted to the present state of Literature, Science and Art, on the basis of Webster's English Dictionary, with the addition of many thousand words and phrases, including the principal and most generally used technical and scientific terms, with their etymology and pronunciation. Also, a supplement, containing an extensive collection of words, terms and phrases not included in previous English Dictionaries. By John Ogilvie, LL.D. The whole illustrated by above twenty-five hundred engravings on wood. Completed in 30 parts, Imperial 8vo., 63 cents each; or 3 large vols. 2,936 pages, cloth, $90.00; half calf, 3 vols., $94.87.

Of this elaborate work, the British Quarterly Review observes:—"Dr. Ogilvie has not only produced the best English Dictionary that exists, but, so far as the actual state of knowledge permitted, has made some approach towards perfection." This opinion will doubtless be confirmed by every impartial inquirer. All English words are carefully and clearly explained, and their meaning broadly and fully stated; and, in addition, scientific and technical terms—the philosophy of art, literature and science—are carefully collected, and lucidly defined. To the student, the newspaper reader, the clergyman, the mechanic, the artisan, the professional man, the Imperial Dictionary will be equally valuable, from its singular comprehensiveness and the authority of its definitions.

It is enriched with upwards of 2,500 engravings on wood, illustrating terms in the various departments of science, art, and industry, and consequently affording a valuable commentary upon, and peculiar intelligible illustrations of, the text.—(B. & Son.)

50. A Supplement to the Imperial Dictionary,

Containing an extensive collection of words, terms, and phrases in the various departments of literature, science, and art; together with numerous obsolete, obsolescent, and Scottish words, found in Chaucer, Spenser, Shakespeare, and Scott, not included in previous English Dictionaries. By John Ogilvie, LL.D. Illustrated by three hundred and fifty engravings on wood. Cloth, $4.00.

The number of additional words, including additional significations to words already given, amount to nearly twenty thousand. The Imperial Dictionary and Supplement together furnish a more extensive vocabulary than any dictionary that has hitherto appeared. The Supplement is so pegged that the portions corresponding with the first and second volumes of the Dictionary may be bound up with them at the pleasure of the Purchaser.

"The Imperial Dictionary, with its Supplement, ought to be found in every library of books of reference."—Literary Gazette.—(B. & Son.)

51. The Comprehensive English Dictionary.

Explanatory, Pronouncing, and Etymological. Containing all English words in present use, numerous phrases, many foreign words used by English writers, and the more important technical and scientific terms. By John Ogilvie, LL.D., Editor of the "Imperial Dictionary." The pronunciation adapted to the best modern usage, by Richard Cull, F.S.A. Illustrated by above eight hundred engravings on wood, and a series of engraved plates. In 24 parts, super-royal 8vo., 50 cents each, or 1 large vol., cloth, $7.75; half cloth, $6.50.

The "Comprehensive Dictionary" is based upon the "Imperial," but is handier, less elaborate, and cheaper. It is not, however, the less valuable as a guide to the precise meaning and approved pronunciation of words, and may be recommended for its fullness, clearness, and accuracy. The definitions are plain and precise; the pronunciation is arranged upon a new and easily intelligible plan, and has been carefully expressed in accordance with the usage of educated English society. Numerous illustrations on wood increase the utility and add to the interest of its pages, while to scientific subjects a series of carefully executed steel engravings has been specially devoted.

"It only remains for us to say, without any reserve, that this is unquestionably the best Dictionary of the English language, of its size and scope, that has yet appeared, and kindest deserves to become the standard family and school-room book throughout the Kingdom, and the ever-at-hand companion of the desk and library table."—Nonconformist.—(B. & Son.)

52. The Student's English Dictionary.

Etymological, Pronouncing, and Explanatory, in which the words are traced to their ultimate sources, the root or primary meaning inserted, and the other meanings given fully, according to the best usage. By John Ogilvie, LL.D., Editor of the "Imperial" and of the "Comprehensive Dictionaries." Illustrated by about three hundred engravings on wood. Imperial 16mo., 696 pages, half morocco, $3.25; cloth, $2.63.

The "Student's Dictionary" comprises nearly all thoroughly English words used by the best writers, a full and satisfactory Etymology (in which the words are traced to their ultimate source, and the foreign vocabularies employed are generally translated into English), and accurate root meanings of the words, followed by the secondary meanings, arranged in a natural sequence. The "Student's English Dictionary" is the only English Dictionary possessing this very useful and important feature.

"The work before us is a marvel, whether for the quantity and quality of its matter, or for the low price at which it is offered. To teachers we commend it as the best and cheapest dictionary in the language—it indeed distances by far anything of the kind before published."—Paper for the Schoolmaster.—(B. & Son.)

53. Dr. Ogilvie's School Dictionary.

An English Dictionary, Etymological, Pronouncing, and Explanatory, for the use of Schools. Comprising all purely English words in common use, Bible words not now used, and Shakespearean words; also, lists of Affixes and Prefixes, Abbreviations, and Latin and French Phrases. Abridged from the "Student's Dictionary" by the Author, John Ogilvie, LL.D. Imperial 16mo.; 479 pp., cloth, red edges, $1.40.

"We know no Dictionary so suited for school use as this: it supplies a want which teachers have long felt."—British Quarterly Review.—(B. & Son.)

54. A Biographical Dictionary of Eminent Scotsmen.

Originally edited by Robert Chambers. New Edition, revised throughout and continued to the present time by the Rev. Thomas Thomson, Editor of the "Comprehensive History of England," and Author of the "Comprehensive History of Scotland." Separately 8vo., not in exceed 36 parts, 65 cents each, or 9 divisions, $1.00; each part illustrated with two highly-finished portraits, engraved on steel. Half calf, 3 vols., $16.50.

The "Biographical Dictionary of Eminent Scotsmen," as its title imports, is intended to supply a complete series of lives of noteworthy natives of Scotland, arranged in alphabetical order. Though in one aspect peculiarly applicable to Scotland, this work will not fail to be of interest in all parts of the British dominions; for many of the eminent individuals whose biographies are here collected, were men of their times as well as of their country, and by the influence of their character or their deeds gained for themselves a place in British or European as well as in Scottish history. (E. & Son.)

55. Ditching and Draining.

A Manual of Tables showing length of drains in any piece of land from 1 pole to 100 acres; number of pipes or tiles required; cubic or solid contents of digging in ditches and drains; with other useful tables. Foolscap 8vo., cloth, 60c.

56. Working Drawings and Designs.

In Mechanical Engineering and Machine-making, with Essays on various subjects. Richly illustrated with wood-cuts. Complete in 38 parts, at 75 cents each.—[F. & Co.]

57. Universal Dictionary.

Embodying in a condensed form the signification of all the terms used in the language, the derivation of each word, and familiar explanations of the manner in which it is pronounced. Complete in 151 parts. 25 cts.—[L.P.Co.]

58. The Popular Encyclopaedia; or, Conversations Lexicon:

Being a General Dictionary of Arts, Sciences, Literature, Biography, History, and Politics; with Preliminary Dissertations by distinguished writers. New and Revised Edition. Complete in 14 divisions, neatly bound, $2.50 each; or in 63 parts, 50 cts. each. Half morocco, marbled edge, 7 vols., $45.

The "Popular Encyclopaedia" has for many years enjoyed the patronage of the public. The present is a carefully revised edition. Numerous articles have been rewritten or modified, additional articles have been inserted, and generally such alterations made as would render it a satisfactory exponent of the latest information in all the great branches of art, science, and literature. In addition an entirely new Supplement has been prepared, containing such Biographical, Geographical, Scientific, and Miscellaneous Articles as could not conveniently be inserted in the body of the work itself. Another feature of interest is applied by separate Dissertations—"On the Progress of Physical Science," by Thomas Thomson, M.D., F.R.S., &c. "On the Recent Progress of Physical Science," by R. D. Thomson, M.D., F.R.S., &c. "On the Rise and Progress of Literature," by Sir D. K. Sandford, D.C.L. "On the Progress of the Fine Arts," by Allan Cunningham. "On the Progress of the Fine Arts during the Present Century, more especially in Great Britain," by R. N. Wornum. The illustrations have been augmented fully one half, and now extend to one hundred and fifty-four pages of steel engravings, fourteen coloured maps, and numerous wood-cuts.

SUPPLEMENT.—Purchasers possessing the earlier editions of this work can have the Supplement separately, bound in cloth, 1 vol. super-royal 8vo., $4.00.—[E. & Son.]

59. New American Encyclopedia,

Complete in 48 divisions, at $1.25 each; or in 16 vols. law calf, at $4.50 each.—
[A. & Co.]

60. The Engineer and Machinist's Assistant:

A series of Plans, Sections, and Elevations of Steam Engines, Water Wheels, Spinning Machines, Mills for Grinding, &c., taken from Machines of Approved Construction; with detailed descriptions and practical essays on various departments of Machinery. In 36 parts, Imperial 8vo, 65 cts. each.—
[H. & Son.]

60½. The Engineer and Machinist's Drawing Book:

A Complete Course of Instruction for the Practical Engineer; comprising Linear Drawings, Projections, Eccentric Curves, the various Forms of Gearing, Reciprocating Machinery, Sketching and Drawing from Machines, Projection of Shadows, Tinting and Colouring, and Perspective, on the basis of the works of M. le Blanc, and M.M. Arnsperg. Illustrated by seventy-one engraved plates, and many engravings on wood. In 16 parts, Imperial 4to, 50 cts. each, or one vol., half morocco, $11.50.

61. The Works of James Hogg, the Ettrick Shepherd,

In Poetry and Prose. A new edition, revised at the instance of the Author's family. With a Biographical Memoir, by the Rev. Thomas Thomson. Illustrated by thirty fine engravings. In 36 parts, super-royal 8vo, 35 cts. each.

The works of the Ettrick Shepherd, as is well known, comprise Tales in prose, illustrative of Border history, character, legends, and superstitions, written in a style peculiarly racy and attractive, which never fails to impress the imagination of the reader, and full of such genial humour and refined pathos, that they obtained distinction for their author even in the palmy days of Walter Scott. But Hogg's genius is, perhaps, seen to its greatest advantage in his Poems, which are compositions of a rare and splendid beauty. His "Queen's Wake" would of itself make the reputation of half-a-dozen poets. His Ballads alternate from "grave to gay, and lively to severe;" and his Songs deserve the wide and enduring popularity which they have attained.

This edition contains brief critical, analytical, or explanatory introductions to the more important poems, along with some poems not previously included in the author's collected writings.

"Certainly we may now recognize him as the only one of Burns' followers who deserves to be named in the same breath."—Press.

"How it would have gratified and excited the worthy Shepherd, to have seen his collected works presented to the world in so handsome a form as that in which they now appear."—Scotsman.—[H. & Son.]

62. England's Battles by Sea and Land,

From the commencement of the Great French Revolution to the present time; including our Indian Campaigns, and the Anglo-French Expedition against Russian aggression in the East. The work will be illustrated with beautiful steel engravings, executed in the first style of art, comprising portraits of Naval and Military Commanders, Battle Scenes, &c., &c. Complete in 72 parts, 25 cents each.—[L. P. Co.]

63. Family Worship:

A Series of Devotional Services for every Morning and Evening throughout the Year, adapted to the purposes of Domestic Worship; Prayers for particular occasions, and Prayers suitable for children, &c. By above two hundred Evangelical Ministers. With five hundred Selected Hymns. Illustrated by twenty-six fine engravings on steel. New and improved Edition, in 35 parts, 25 cents each; half calf, marbled edge, $9.50; half morocco, gilt edge, $11.00.

The work comprises 738 Services, adapted to be used in the family, being a Service for every Morning and Evening throughout the year, with Special Services for the Morning and Evening of New Year's Day. Each Service is composed of Praise, Prayer, and Scriptural Exposition. Thus it points out a suitable psalm or hymn to be sung; next it refers to a portion of Scripture to be read from the Bible itself, and adds some brief explanatory and practical remarks; and the whole closes with a plain, earnest, and devout Prayer. A selection of 500 of the finest devotional hymns in our language has been specially prepared for this work, and forms the concluding portion of the volume.

This new edition of "Family Worship" includes contributions from above two hundred Evangelical Ministers, among whom may be named—Rev. W. Arnot, author of "Laws from Heaven for Life on Earth," &c.; Rev. Dr. Buchanan, author of "Ecclesiastes: its Meaning and its Lessons"; Rev. Dr. Cooke, Editor of "Brown's Self-Interpreting Bible"; Rev. Dr. Duncan, author of "Sacred Philosophy of the Seasons," &c.; Rev. Dr. Fairbairn, author of "Typology of Scripture," &c.; Rev. Dr. Edmond, author of "The Children's Church at Home," &c.; Rev. Dr. Macle, author of "The Biblical Cyclopaedia," &c.; Rev. Dr. Guthrie, author of "The Gospel in Beekiel," &c.; Rev. E. M. McChesney, of Dundee; Rev. Dr. Hamilton, author of "Life in Earnest," &c.; Rev. Dr. Macduff, author of "The Faithful Promisee," &c.; Rev. Dr. Tweedie, author of "Daily Devotion, Seed Time and Harvest," &c.—[B. & Son.]

70. Farm Insects:

Being the Natural History and Economy of the Insects Injurious to the Field Crops in Great Britain and Ireland, and also those which infect Hares and Game; with suggestions for the destruction of enemies and the preservation of friends. By John Curtis, F.L.S., &c., &c. Illustrated with many hundred figures on steel and wood. The plates carefully coloured like drawings. Super-royal 8vo, cloth, 2s. 6d.

"How to keep the pest from destroying the produce of the season is the problem set before the farmer. Mr. Curtis shows to his full advantage. It is a remedy to be sought, the remedy must be well known, it is a plan to be gone on to to kill the enemy, must know his quarters when he comes down, he must be with the various districts which they occupy in their progress to mischief, and their habits while under them; must know where to find them, and what weapons to use most successfully against them."—North British Review, (1861, 2d. S. 2.)

71. The Farmer's Guide:

A Treatise on the Diseases of Horses and Black Cattle, with Instructions for the Management of Breeding Hares and Cows. By James Webb, Veterinary Surgeon. Thirtieth edition. Folsio 8vo, cloth, $1.00.—(B. & Son.)

72. Our Farm Crops:

Being a popular scientific description of the Cultivation, Chemistry, Diseases, and Remedies, &c., of our different Crops, worked up to the high farming of the present day. By John Wilson, F.R.S.E., Professor of Agriculture to the University of Edinburgh, &c. Numerous engravings on wood. In 2 vols. crown 8vo, cloth, $3.50.

"Professor Wilson, with infinite labour, collected all the information scattered through other publications, condensing and adding his own practical experience and observation, so as to bring together, under the head of each individual plant, all that is known up to the present time, in her practical or scientific. We cordially recommend the work to the careful perusal of every farmer, and feel that the agricultural world is highly indebted to Professor Wilson for this admirable work."—British Farmer's Gazette.—(B. & Son.)

73. The Imperial Gazetteer:

A General Dictionary of Geography, Physical, Political, Statistical, and Descriptive; including comprehensive accounts of the countries, cities, principal towns, villages, seas, lakes, rivers, islands, mountains, valleys, &c., in the world. Edited by W. G. Blackie, Ph. D., F.R.G.S. With a Supplement bringing the geographical information down to the latest dates. Illustrated by above eight hundred engravings. Re-issue with a Supp. in 36 parts, imp. 8vo, 62s. each; or divs., $1.68; half calf, 9 vols., $92.50.

In compiling the "Imperial Gazetteer" no less than several thousand authorities were consulted and compared, including not only the researches of the most eminent geographers, but the latest discoveries of modern travellers. In every article, however brief and apparently unimportant, the utmost correctness of detail has been carefully studied, and the publishers confidently offer this work to the public as the product of untiring industry and conscientious labour.

"As a book of reference for the private study, Blackie's 'Imperial Gazetteer' is a work of rare merit, furnishing in a condensed form a vast amount of information, accompanied by a large number of engravings. Its companion, the 'Imperial Atlas,' is not less deserving of commendation."—Review.—(B. & Son.)

74. A History of the Earth and Animated Nature.

Goldsmith's admirably graphic descriptions of the earth and its wonders, and the curiosities of animated nature, have long been deservedly popular with English readers, and will continue popular while readers can appreciate a lucid statement of facts and an elegant simplicity of style. The deficiencies inseparable from the imperfect state of scientific knowledge in his time are supplied by a copious selection of notes from the works of later naturalists.—(B. & Son.)

75. The Gardener's Assistant, Practical and Scientific:

A Guide to the Formation and Management of the Kitchen, Fruit, and Flower Garden, and the Cultivation and Management of Green-house and Stove Plants. With a copious calendar of gardening operations. By Robert Thomson, of the Horticultural Society's Gardens, Chiswick. Illustrated with twelve beautifully coloured engravings, representing choice flowers or fruits; and nearly 300 engravings on wood. In 32 parts, 63s. each; or super-royal 8vo, cloth extra, $9.25.

Besides the subjects above indicated, the work contains chapters on the physiology of plants, the nature and improvement of soils, the various kinds of manures and their uses, and the tools, instruments, &c., employed in gardening; together with selected lists and descriptions of the best varieties of vegetables, fruits, and flowers.

"The best compendious treatise on modern gardening."—Daily Telegraph.—(B. & Son.)

78. The Comprehensive History of England:

Civil and Military, Religious, Intellectual and Social, from the earliest period to the suppression of the Sepoy revolt. By Charles Macfarlane and the Rev. Thomas Thomson. Illustrated by above eleven hundred engravings on wood and steel—views, costumes, portraits, maps, plans, &c. Complete in 36 parts, 56s. each; or in 4 handsome vols. super-royal 8vo, cloth, extra, $30.00.

"Not to know what happened before one was born, is to be twice a child." To be ignorant of the glorious annals of one's country is to want the purest incentive to a patriotic discharge of one's duties as a citizen. "Great men have been among us; better none;" and their splendid achievements have worked out a history of which every Englishman should be proud, and which is the best heritage and truest inspiration of our sons. To develop the surprising changes of that history, and its progressive spirit, and place them clearly before the English public, is the object of the present work. It presents a luminous view of the moral and social progress of the English people, as well as a concise record of the successes which have crowned their arms in many a well-fought field. It is a history of Englishmen, as well as of England; of inventions and arts and religious movements, as well as of cabinets and councils, fleets and armies. Thus, each important period or epoch is illustrated in two distinct sections; the first of these is devoted to a history of religion—the second, to an exposition of the industrial condition of the people; their agricultural and mechanical progress; their dress, distinctive habits and customs, and gradual development of social laws; and the changes and advancement of science, literature, and the arts. Meanwhile, the main stream of the political history of England flows on uninterrupted, and grateful recognition is made of the labours of those worthies who have benefited the commonwealth by their mechanical labours or philanthropic schemes.

The mind is often enlightened by the eye, and great care, therefore, has been taken to provide for the copious illustration of the text by appropriate engravings. These comprise—maps and plans of battles, battle fields, and towns; portraits of illustrious persons; views of famous localities, monuments, and buildings; sketches of dwellings, costumes, shipping, armour, manners and customs. Each volume is also adorned with a frontispiece and vignette title, engraved on steel. The type is clear and distinct; it may be read without fatigue by even weak eyes; and altogether, the publishers are willing to believe these handsome and carefully executed volumes fully deserve their distinctive title of "The Comprehensive History of England."

"The arrangement is clear and judicious, the style graphic and vivid—the narrative resembling the hard-entailed established histories only as a living, breathing form resembles the skeleton it covers; and, when completed, the volumes promise to form a work as useful to the student as agreeable to the reader."—Globe.

"An admirable record not only of military and political events, but of moral and intellectual progress, thus comprising in fact a real history of England."—Civil Service Gazette.

"It is what its authors have laboured to make it—a national history fitted for the use of every British home."—Art Journal.

"We regard this publication as by far the most beautiful, cheap, and really 'comprehensive' history of the nation which has ever yet appeared."—John Bull.

"The illustrations of the text are supplied with a judgment that takes account of what readers are likely to require, and rejects the trivial and uninteresting. Altogether, an illustrated idea of the varied times and manners is conveyed in this elegant publication which will secure the admiration of all classes of the people."—News of the World.

"Stricter attention is bestowed on the moral and intellectual progress of the nation than by any previous historian, not excepting Dr. Henry, or even the writers of the 'Pictorial History of England.'"—Westminster Times.—(B. & Son.)

From the earliest period to the present time. By Thomas Wright, Esqr., M. A., F.S.A., &c.; Corresponding Member of the Institute of France, author of the "History of Scotland," &c. &c. Illustrated with beautiful Engravings on Steel. The work will be printed on imperial 8vo., from new type. The parts, at 25 cents, will contain 48 pages of letter-press and one steel engraving, to be completed in 54 parts, at 25 cents each.—(L. P. Co.)

86. History of the Waldenses.

The Israel of the Alps. A complete History of the Vaudois of Piedmont (or Waldenses) and their Colonies. Prepared in great part from unpublished documents. By Alexis Muston, D. D. Illustrated by Maps and beautiful views of the Waldensian Valleys. In 2 vols. 8vo., cloth, $4.50.

Dr. Muston has here collected a vast amount of valuable and original matter respecting the remarkable history of the Waldensian Christians, and the persecutions to which they were exposed by the relentless hostility of secular rulers and the Romish Church. The reader's sympathies are warmly excited by the lucid narrative presented in these pages of the sufferings and "faith unto death" of the Waldensian martyrs.—B. & Son.

87. Tytler's Elements of Modern History.

From the Fall of the Western Roman Empire. With considerable additions to the Author's Text, numerous notes, and a continuation to the reign of Queen Victoria. Edited by the Rev. Brandon Turner, M. A. Seventh edition. Foolscap 8vo., cloth, $1.00.

88. D'Aubigne's History of the Reformation.

Translated by D. D. Scott, and H. White, B.A. The translation carefully revised by Dr. Mearle d'Aubigne. Large type, numerous notes, not in any other edition, and Forty Illustrations, beautifully engraved on Steel. In 4 vols., demy octavo, cloth, elegant, $11.

89. A Comprehensive History of India.

Civil, Military, and Social, from the first landing of the English to the suppression of the Sepoy Revolt; including an outline of the Early History of Hindostan. By Henry Beveridge, Esq., Advocate. Illustrated by above Five Hundred Engravings on Wood and Steel, Antiquities, Views, Costumes, Portraits, Maps, Plans of Battles, &c. In 26 parts, 50 cents each; or 3 handsome vols. super-royal 8vo. cloth, extra, $16.00.

Commencing with a brief but intelligible sketch of the earlier and obscurer annals of Hindostan, the author then proceeds to describe the series of events connected with the establishment of the Cape route to the East, and the opening up of direct commercial intercourse with Europe; the rivalry of the European nations in their endeavours to monopolise the golden results of Indian commerce; and their constant wars with the native people in their pursuit of territorial power. The first volume closes with the cession of the Dewannee of Bengal, Behar, and Orissa, to the English East India Company, which may fairly be regarded as the foundation-stone of our Indian empire. The second volume is occupied with an account of the origin and castes of the Hindus, their religion, mythology, government, philosophy, science, literature, and arts—their agriculture, commerce, manufactures, manners and customs; of the rise and progress of Hyder Ali, and the hostilities in which the company were involved with that subtle but brilliant potentate—the splendid career of Clive—the glorious administration of Warren Hastings—the contest with Tippoo Saib—the victories of Wellington and Lake—and the services of the marquis of Wellesley. The third and last volume comprises what may be termed the recent history of India, from the renewal of the Company's Charter, in 1814, to the incorporation of the country as an integral portion of the British empire in 1858, and its submission to the direct control of the Crown; including such famous and ever-memorable passages as the Seinde war, the campaigns of Sir Charles Napier, the Sikh war, and the terrible mutiny.

In the course of these highly interesting volumes, the reader is made fully acquainted with the peculiarities of soil and climate, and the natural capabilities of India; the state of the people in respect of civilization, education, and religion; their habits, manners and policy; the recent development of British legislation; and, in short, he is supplied with ample materials for the formation of a sound and intelligent judgment upon the inhabitants of this most splendid dependency of the British crown.

"A complete and elegantly written history, profusely illustrated."—Atlas.

"The historian has well and carefully digested his materials, and the illustrators have greatly aided him by the numerous and beautifully executed engravings on steel and wood. Many excellent maps of military engagements and positions enhance in value and render it peculiarly attractive and instructive."—Opel Service Gazette.—[B. & Son.]

The above work is also published in German at the same price.

98. Italy, Illustrated and Described.

A series of Sixty Views, engraved in the most finished manner, from Drawings by Stanfield, R. A., Roberts, R. A., Harding, Prout, Leitch, Brookedon, Barnard, &c. With careful descriptions of the scenes. Preceded by a review of the past condition and future prospects of Italy and the Italians, and a sketch of the progress of Italy during the last fifteen years. In 34 parts, medium 4to., 25 cents each; or 1 vol., handsomely bound, in half morocco, gilt edges, price $13.50.

The recent struggle of Italy for a place among the nations, befitting her past history and present resources, and her natural aspirations after Rome and Venice as needful to the completeness of her independence, are subjects in which Englishmen feel the liveliest interest. The picturesqueness of her landscapes; her classic, poetic, and historical associations; her memories of great men and great deeds—of the sculptor's art and the musician's song—of Imperial Rome and beautiful Parthenopé, have also contributed towards the feelings of admiration and sympathy with which she is regarded by Great Britain. How high a place she holds in our affection has recently been shown by the magnificent reception accorded to the best and purest of her modern heroes. The British public will, therefore, welcome, it is believed, the present splendid volume, in which pen and pencil have been employed, with unexampled success, to describe and illustrate her most charming landscapes and her fairest cities. The steel engravings have been executed with the most loving fidelity and the most perfect finish, and the descriptive letterpress is replete with interesting details. The introductory review of the political, religious and moral state of Italy, and the sketch of her progress during the last fifteen years, will likewise commend themselves to every thoughtful reader.

"This truly superb publication."—Globe.

"There is an exquisite delicacy of finish in these engravings. They are in the finest line manner, which admits of full justice being done to the various subjects."—Scotsman.

"The subjects of the engravings are chosen with judgment, and, generally speaking, they are presented to the eye from the best points of view."—Times.—[B. & Son.]

101. The Whole Works of Flavius Josephus.

Large Type. With maps and other illustrations. Demy 8vo., 4 vols., bound in cloth, $6.25.

A very readable edition of the works of the great Jewish historian, containing his noble "History of the Jewish War," and the destruction of Jerusalem by Titus—of which he was an eye-witness; his "Martyrdom of the Maccabees," "Jewish Antiquities," "Autobiography," and other valuable treatises.

102. The Complete Works of Flavius Josephus.

The learned and authentic Jewish historian. Translated by Wm. Whiston, Professor of Mathematics in the University of Cambridge. With a sequel to the History of the Jews, continued to the present time. In 27 parts, at 25 cents, every part embellished with two steel engravings.—[L. P. Co.]

103. Charles Knight's Pictorial Museum

Of Animated Nature, and Companion for the Zoological Gardens. Illustrated with four thousand wood engravings.

It is intended that this work shall serve most of the purposes of instruction and delight which belong to the greatest national museums. The reader, at the very smallest price, is put in possession of by far the most extensive collection that has ever been produced of pictorial representations, executed with scientific accuracy, of all important quadrupeds, birds, fishes, reptiles, and insects which fill the earth. It is impossible not to believe that a work so useful in its design, and so unequalled in the extent of its illustrations, will find its way into every family.

Each part, at 25 cents, contains 26 imperial 4to. pages, comprising about 120 illustrations, beautifully engraved on wood, accompanied with descriptive letter-press. To be completed in 30 parts, at 25 cts. each.—[L. P. Co.]

104. Pictorial Sunday Book.

Scripture Atlas, and Geography of the Holy Land. By the late Dr. John Kitto, F.S.A.

Each part, at 25 cts., will contain 30 imperial 4to. pages of letter-press, upwards of 60 illustrations, beautifully engraved on wood, and an elegant steel engraving, or an illuminated map of the Holy Land. The work will be completed in 26 parts at 25 cts. each.—[L. P. Co.]

105. Ladies of the Reformation.

Memoirs of Distinguished Female Characters, belonging to that period, in England, Scotland, and the Netherlands. By the Rev. James Anderson, author of "Ladies of the Covenant," &c. Enriched with nearly one hundred illustrations, carefully engraved on wood. Small 4to., cloth, extra, $2.75; Turkey morocco, antique, tooled edges, $3.50.

Among the noble women whose careers are recorded in these volumes, may be named—Lady Jane Grey, Queen Elizabeth, Anne of Bohemia, Louise de Colligny, Marjory Bowes, wife of Knox, Anne Askew, and Lady Katherine Hamilton. Every page is replete with incident, and it would be difficult to find a volume better adapted for perusal by Christian ladies.

"Here we have a book which, in interest and excitement, matches fiction, while its historical truth is a foundation on which the judgment can rest satisfied."—Evangelical Magazine.—(B. & Son.)

106. Ladies of the Covenant.

Memoirs of Distinguished Scottish Female Characters, embracing the period of the Covenant and Persecution. By the Rev. James Andrew, author of "The Martyrs of the Bass." Numerous engravings on wood. Small 4to., cloth antique, $2.00.

This volume contains interesting and original memoirs of a group of noble women who were distinguished for their patriotic interest or sufferings in the cause of Nonconformity during the period of the covenant, and particularly during the period of the persecution. Among them will be found—the Marchioness of Hamilton, Marchioness of Argyll, Duchess of Hamilton, Mrs. Livingstone, Lady Anne Lindsay, Isabel Allison, Marion Harvey, Margaret Wilson, Grizell Hume, and Lady Katherine Hamilton.—[B. & Son.]

107. Memorable Women of the Puritan Times.

By the Rev. James Anderson, author of "Ladies of the Reformation." In 2 vols. crown 8vo., cloth extra, price $3.95.

This "valuable and most interesting addition to our by no means over rich stores of female biography" forms an admirable sequel and companion to its author's preceding memorials of Christian heroines. It possesses all the stirring interest of romance with all the importance of truth, and finely illustrates the "saving power of faith" and the beauty of a holy life. Among the memorable women here recorded are—Margaret Tindal, Lady Fairfax, Mrs. Hutchinson, the mother and wife of Oliver Cromwell, Bridget and Elizabeth Cromwell, daughters of the great Protector, &c.—(B. & Son.)

the recent practice in England and America. By Daniel Kinnear Clark, Engineer. Illustrated by an extensive series of plates, and numerous engravings on wood. Complete in 25 parts, imperial 4to., 63 cents each.
This work combines the locomotive section of the author's treatise on "Railway Machinery," with extensive additions illustrating the practice of English locomotive live engineers of the present day, and presenting the most recent attainments in American practice. It also includes the consideration of coal-burning, and a variety of other questions bearing upon the improvement and economical working of the locomotive.

"It is one of the cheapest and most useful works which has been offered to the practical man, and happily combines amplitude of design with completeness of detail; the text, too, well supporting the engraved illustrations."—Old Engineer and Architect's Journal.—(B. & Son.)

120. Railway Machinery.

A Treatise on the Mechanical Engineering of Railways; embracing the principles and construction of rolling and fixed plant, in all departments. By D. Kinnear Clark, Engineer. Illustrated by an extensive series of plates, and numerous engravings on wood. In 30 parts, Imperial 4to., 63 cts. each.

"This work gives such a comprehensive view of railway machinery, in all its details, that the engineer, old and young, can have no better authority for reference; and the old engineer will benefit by it, because he finds here the examples of his rivals as well as of his own."—Old Engineer and Architect's Journal.—(B. & Son.)

121. Recent Practice in the Locomotive Engine.

Being a Supplement to the author's treatise on Railway Machinery; comprising the latest English improvements, and a treatise on the locomotive engines of the United States. By Daniel Kinnear Clark and Zerah Colburn, Engineers. Illustrated by a series of plates and numerous engravings on wood. In 10 parts, Imperial 4to., 63 cents each.

This work consists simply of the new portion of "Railway Locomotives," announced above. It is published separately for the benefit of those who already possess the authors' treatise on "Railway Machinery."

"Mr. Clark has the great merit of combining in an eminent degree accurate observation with analytical ability."—Artisan.—(B. & Son.)

122. The Heroines of Shakspeare.

Being a Series of Portraits of the principal Female Characters in the Plays of the Great Poet. Beautifully engraved on steel from Drawings by eminent artists, with extracts from the Text, in English and French, and critical essays on the Plays, in which each Character is introduced. In 16 parts, at 50c each. —[L. P. Co.]

123. A New Edition of Shakspeare.

Revised from the original Editions, with Historical Introductions; Notes, explanatory and critical; a Life of the Poet and an Essay on his Genius. Edited by Barry Cornwall; illustrated by Kenny Meadows, &c., in a superb series of fine steel engravings, about 75 in number; besides 1,000 engravings on wood, steel etchings, &c. Forming an addition to the work of the Great Bard, worthy of the Poet himself, and, when completed, unrivalled by any other edition in value and beauty. To be completed in 52 parts, 25 cents each. —[L. P. Co.]

124. The Scots Worthies.

Their Lives and Testimonies. Originally compiled by John Howie, of Lochgoin. Revised by James Howie, A.M. With an introduction by the Rev. Robert Buchanan, D.D. Smyth, K.R.F., D.C.L., &c. Revised for the press by Vice-Admiral Sir E. Belcher, K.C.B., &c. Just published. Medium 8vo, 750 pages, cloth extra, $5.50.

This "Word-Book" embraces some 17,900 terms and phrases, illustrative of the nautical language of past and present times; and will be found useful by the mercantile as well as royal marine, shipowners, lawyers, journalists, readers of nautical works, and all others in any way interested in sea-faring matters.—(B. & Son.)

131. Travels in the Holy Land.

Notes of a Clerical Furlough, spent chiefly in the Holy Land. With a Sketch of the Voyage out. By Robert Buchanan, D.D., author of "The Ten Years' Conflict," &c. With maps and plans. Square 8vo, cloth, $1.00.

This entertaining volume of travel will be found "a most interesting commentary, and an invaluable help" to every reader of the Bible, and especially every expounder of it. The great merit of the book is its reality. It is not a compilation got up at home, but a bona fide personal narrative. What it aims at is to enable the reader to see what the writer saw, and to hear what he heard.—(B. & Son.)

132. Life of the Virgin Mary.

With the History of the Devotion to her. By Mrs. J. Eadling. Complete in 28 parts, 25 cents.

133. Tales of the Borders and of Scotland.

Historical, Traditionary, and Humorous. By John Mackay Wilson. Complete in 33 parts, 25c. each; or in five divisions, bound in muslin, $2.00 each.

These Tales are nearly five hundred in number, and are unrivalled for attractiveness and fidelity to truth, written in a glowing style of unexceptionable purity, and inculcating most valuable lessons of morality and religion; they are more fascinating than the great mass of novels and romances by which the present age has been so woefully corrupted. No stories, since those of Sir Walter Scott, have acquired such an immense popularity. In Great Britain they are welcomed by all classes, and are familiar in many quarters as "household tales." They are in every form—humorous, pathetic, traditional, historical, and descriptive, suitable to every taste and mood of mind, and not less guarded from the possibility of giving offence to the nicest delicacy of sentiment than preserved from interfering with the sanctioned creeds, prejudices, and feelings of party, whether political or religious. Its widely extended circulation, however, forms the best test of its intrinsic merits, as well as the most legitimate justification of this recommendation of it to the continued patronage of the public. It is a library in itself, and yet at so low a price, as to come within the means of all.

"We are glad to find that these popular Tales are being reprinted here. For variety of interest, for faithful delineations of character, for beauty of conception, and clearness of language, these Tales are almost unequalled. The price is remarkably low, twenty-five cents a number, which places them within the reach of every class of readers."—Albion.

"We have just received the numbers of a work which has acquired great celebrity in Great Britain—Tales and Sketches Illustrative of the Life and History of the Scottish Borders. They are brief, but numerous, and written with singular fidelity to truth and nature, and in a style of great attractiveness and eloquence. They are entirely unexceptionable in moral tone, and embodying many of the most important events of English and Scottish History, and imparting lessons of admirable aim, they will be apt to gain on this side the water not a little of that unprecedented popularity which they have enjoyed abroad."—Times.

"We have received the first numbers of this excellent and popular publication. They are both pleasing and instructive, and have the merit of being free from that false and unwelcome sentimentality which disfigure most of the reading of the present day, as being as injurious to the morals as they are pleasing to the taste of the young. We can commend the 'Borders Tales' for the varied and lively interest which they possess for their true and faithful portrayal of real life, and for their sentiments of virtue. We advise those who desire to place an interesting and instructive work in their libraries, to subscribe for them."—Scotsman.

"This sterling collection of historical and traditionary tales promises to supply a desideratum long felt, by giving moral and instructive, historical and descriptive narratives, traditions, and sketches of life and character, free from the sickly sentimentality and false tastes so generally derived from modern novels. Well drawn scenes from real life are calculated to enlarge the heart and inspire the understanding, while portrayments of fictitious characters of an ideal world, in which marvellousness constitutes the chief merit, have a reverse effect. We take pleasure in commending the 'Tales of the Borders.'"—Tribune. [J. F. & Co.]

134. Duke of Wellington.

Comprising the Campaigns and Battle-fields of Wellington and his Comrades, interspersed with anecdotes, personal incidents, adventures, &c., &c.; and a detailed account of England's Battles by Sea and Land, from the commencement of the great French Revolution to the present time. Also, "The Political Life of the Duke and his Contemporaries." Illustrated with portraits, views, and maps. Each part, at 25 cents, contain 32 pages of letter-press, and embellished by two beautiful steel engravings. The work will be completed in 48 parts, at 25 cents each.—[L. E. Co.]

135. War for the Union.

By B. A. Daykinok. Splendidly illustrated by H. Keppel. Complete in 78 parts, 25 cents each.—[J. F. & Co.]

136. The Royal Drawing-Room Table Book;

Comprising Original Tales and Poetry. By John Sherer. Illustrated by a series of Steel Engravings, executed in the highest style of art, by the first artists. In 1 vol., cloth extra, gilt edges; 3s.6d.—[L. P. & Co.]

137. The Imperial Gazetteer of Scotland.

Topographical, Statistical, and Historical, forming a complete Dictionary of Scottish Topography. Edited by John Marius Wilson. Illustrated with a complete County Atlas, various Chorographical Maps, Plans of Ports, Harbours, and interesting Views. In 3 vols. Imperial 8vo., rich cloth, price £3 4s., or in 20 parts, price 2s. each.

The most popular Gazetteer of Scotland till then published was the Topographical, Statistical, and Historical Gazetteer, first issued in 1846.

The first edition of the Imperial Gazetteer of Scotland, Topographical, Statistical, and Historical, appeared in 1859. Its preparation had the advantage of extensive experience acquired in the production of the former Gazetteer of Scotland and other Gazetteers.

The New Imperial Gazetteer of Scotland, now presented to the public, appears nevertheless with all the advantages of an entirely new work.

So rapid has been the progress in population, manufactures, architecture, engineering, and mercantile and banking combinations, that much matter will be found in it new to readers of the previous editions, and interesting to the public, while all that is valuable and permanent in them is retained and added to. The high reputation of the Gazetteers of Messrs. Fullerton & Co. it continues and augments. Its title to be considered a great national work is confirmed and extended.

The New Imperial Gazetteer will be illustrated with a beautifully-coloured Map of the country; various chorographical maps of its more important sections, plans of its principal Cities, Ports, Harbours, and Havens, and an Atlas of County Maps, all similarly coloured; as also with a series of views of its most striking and romantic scenery, engraved and printed in a superior manner. In this department of the work, as in the printing, no exertions will be spared to make it a work as beautiful as it is interesting and useful.

"I have looked over the first volume of 'The Imperial Gazetteer of Scotland' which you have been kind enough to send me; and I cannot refrain from saying that, highly as I thought of the former edition, the present one is decidedly superior to it."

"In addition to being beautifully printed and embellished, it contains an able and succinct summary of the vast stores of statistical and physical, as well as geographical and local information, which the mental activity and industry of the present age is every day accumulating. The undertaking promises to be as creditable to the literature of the country as it must prove useful and valuable as a repository of knowledge to its inhabitants."—Letter from Sir Archd. Alison to the Publishers.—[Fullerton & Co.]

138. The Royal Illustrated Atlas

Of Modern Geography. Imperial folio, with Introduction and index. In 26 parts, at 5s. each; or bound in half morocco, £7 10s.

The Maps in the Royal Illustrated Atlas aim at unity. They show the whole extent of every great country and its dependencies, as far as possible, in one map. When of great magnitude and politically important, as in the case of the United States, the sections are engraved on double Maps of the largest size. In other cases the more important portions only are given on a larger scale.

The double Maps are forty-eight in number: Twenty-eight single Maps make the work to consist of Seventy-six in all. Throughout the series of single and within the margins of the double Maps, are sectional representations of Districts and Dependencies. Along with and including plans of Ports, Harbours, and Cities—many of great importance, and elaborately executed, which are likewise given—these sectional Maps number upwards of One Hundred and Ninety. Pictorial illustrations of Scenery, Natural History, and Customs of Tropical and Arctic regions—One Hundred and Fifty in all—are given around and on the margins of the Maps.

The Engraving and Colouring is of a beauty and clearness surpassed by no similar work.

An Introductory Notice by Dr. Norton Shaw, Secretary to the Royal Geographical Society, is a contribution of great utility to the scholar and geographer.

An Index of names directs to the Map in which they are to be found. The Positions, carefully measured, and on a new principle as respects Territorial Names, are appended in every instance.

Modern Geography and the latest adjustments of Political Boundaries—as is implied in the title of the work—have been carefully attended to.

The next leading feature is the prominence given to Political Geography. Maps of dependencies follow, in numerical order, those of the governing countries. The political connection is never lost sight of.

Another feature is its full representation of British Geography. In Twenty-two consecutive Maps the dominions of the British crown in all parts of the world are mapped in detail. There are sixty plans of Ports and Cities in the British islands alone.

Other great states are not overlooked. Russia, Germany, United States, France, and the Netherlands have equal justice done to them in consecutive Maps.

An inspection of any portion of the Royal Illustrated Atlas will satisfy the mind and eye of the immense progress that has been made in the exhibition of Terrestrial Geography by means of Map-engraving and Map-colouring during the last twenty years. If this be done, the publishers feel satisfied of the generous support of the public to this great undertaking.—[Fullerton & Co.]

139. Descriptive Hand-Atlas of the World,

By John Bartholomew, F. R. G. S., dedicated, by permission, to Sir Roderick Impey Murchison, Bart., K.C.B., D.C.L., LL. D., F.R.S., &c., President of the Royal Geographical Society, and Foreign Associate of the Institute of France. In 15 Parts (with Index,) small folio, price 2s. each.

Notwithstanding the number of Atlases already in the market, there is still room for a thoroughly popular work combining the requisite essentials of utility, cheapness, descriptive information, facility of reference, and excellence of execution.

In introducing The Descriptive Hand-Atlas, the Publishers have pleasure in submitting to the Public a work prepared by the well-known Geographer, John Bartholomew, Fellow of the Royal Geographical Society, which thoroughly fulfils the above named requirements, and an inspection of which, it is confidently believed, will secure for it a large share of public patronage.

The Maps are 27 in number, each measuring from border to border 16 by 11 inches, and are artistically printed in colours on fine paper. The high reputation of the geographer is a sufficient guarantee for the correctness and clearness of execution of these Maps. Special care has been taken in the selection of names to render the Maps clear, so as to secure ease and rapidity of reference.

Each Map has a complete Index embracing every name to be found thereon, classified under general and descriptive heads; and furnishing additional and important statistical information, such as the extent and population of countries, provinces, and towns, the heights of mountains, the lengths of rivers, &c.

The references to the Maps in these Indices are by letters which, easily found on the top and side of the Maps guide to the square containing the name required. A General Index, containing every name given in the Maps of the Atlas, is also given.

140. A History of the Scottish Highlands,

Highland Clans, and Highland Regiments; on the basis of Browne's "History of the Highlands and Clans," but entirely re-modelled, and, to a large extent, re-written. With an account of Gaelic Literature, written for the work, by the Rev. Thomas McLauchlan, LL.D., F.S.A.S., one of the Editors of the "Dean of Lismore's Book," author of "The Early Scottish Church," &c., and an Essay on Highland Society, by the late Professor John Wilson. Edited by John S. Keltie, F.S.A.S.

Browne's "History of the Highlands and Clans"—the work on which this publication is to a certain extent based—was published upwards of thirty years ago; since which time such a flood of light has been thrown on all matters connected with the Highlands, that the publishers feel the old book has fallen behind the age, and that, to keep pace with the advanced state of historical research, a new work is demanded.

The patriotic labours of the various Scottish book-clubs—the Abbotsford, the Bannatyne, the Iona, the Maitland, and the Spalding Clubs,—the works of the various eminent Scottish antiquaries and historians, not to mention many valuable papers and pamphlets, have not only brought to light many new facts, but have opened up formerly unthought-of tracks of inquiry, and subjected everything connected with the Highlands to an unsparring and searching criticism. Therefore, in preparing the work now presented to the public, it has been found necessary to make such extensive alterations and additions, that the publishers feel justified in calling it a new work.

The work is divided into three sections:—

- I. The General History of the Highlands, including Religion, Literature, and Antiquities.
- II. The History of the Highland Clans.
- III. The History of the Highland Regiments.

Illustrations.

Besides clan-tartans, the work will be richly embellished with autographs, seals, armorial bearings, objects of antiquarian interest, and many views and portraits on wood and steel, all taken from original or other authentic sources, and executed in the first style of art.

The publishers have spared no pains to obtain original and genuine portraits, and to have them faithfully and beautifully reproduced; and they owe their sincere thanks to those noblemen and gentlemen connected with the Highlands who have allowed them access to their valuable family collections, in order to obtain copies of such original portraits as were required for the work. Many of these portraits have never before been engraved. The publishers would especially mention here the valuable miniature portrait of Prince Charles Edward Stuart, in Highland costume, which has been in possession of the Lochiel family for generations, and which has been kindly placed at their disposal by the present representative of the family, Donald Cameron, Esq., M.P. for Inverness-shire. It has the merit of being a faithful likeness, and will be engraved by Heli, of London.

Many of the views, illustrative both of the events narrated in the history, and of the rich and romantic Highland scenery, are from photographs and drawings taken specially for the work. Others, consisting chiefly of views of towns and fortresses taken at or near the time of the events they are intended to illustrate, are copied from the rare and valuable work of John Slesser, entitled Theatrum Scotiae, published at the end of the 17th century. The facts that Slesser was a military engineer, and that he was appointed by Government to survey the chief towns and strongholds of Scotland, are sufficient guarantees of the faithfulness of these views.—[Fullerton & Co.]

141. The English Nation,

- A History of England in the Lives of Englishmen, by George Godfrey Cunningham. In 36 Parts at 6s. 6d. each, 15 Divisions, cloth, at 6s. 6d., or 5 Volumes at 18s. each, with 63 engraved Portraits, and 15 pages of Autographs; size, imperial 8vo.

If the History of a nation can be fitly shown in the Lives of its eminent men; if the charms peculiar to biography can be transferred to history; and if the dignity and unity of purpose necessary to history can be imparted to biography; the English Nation should be at once a fascinating and an instructive book. The idea is original. It is simple. It has strong recommendations.

All the Biographies contained in the work are grouped together under nine periods, forming as many distinct epochs in English history, and extending from the reign of Alfred the Great to the accession of Her present Majesty Queen Victoria. They are each period ranged again under three separate and distinct classes of biographies; viz., a Political Series; an Ecclesiastical Series; and a Literary Series.

These nine periods are distinguished and prefaced by elaborate Historical Introductions, forming together a line of connecting historical narrative,—a brief summary, in short, of the History of England—from the earliest times to the commencement of the present reign.

In the order of the dates of their decease, all Englishmen who lived and distinguished themselves during each of these nine periods, are noticed and comprehended under the classes to which they properly belong.

A distinctive character and chronological relation is thus obtained for each individual; a personal interest conferred upon each period and each series. The memory is strengthened, and the imagination aided, as contemporaries in time, in labour, or in office are once and again referred to.

These collective biographies show not only the characteristics by which each epoch was distinguished, but the details of the Lives of the men who guided its course and were instruments in producing its changes and wonders. They are not mere abridgements from previous histories or biographies. They are new, original, independent; written specially for a work like this; a work on a system and a plan; and having reference to that system and plan in their selection and treatment.

As the authorities cited will show, the fac-similes of Autographs are copied almost exclusively from the originals in the national repositories. They gratify a natural desire to have some physical memorial of those of whom in most cases none other remains. The Portraits are taken from the best sources. In engraving and printing they are fit illustrations of the work in which they are placed.—[Fullerton & Co.]

142. The Scottish Nation;

Or the Surnames, Families, Literature, Honour, and Biographical History of the People of Scotland. By William Anderson, author of the Life, and editor of the works, of Lord Byron, &c., &c. In 30 Parts, price 3s. each. (It may also be had in 9 Divisions, bound in rich cloth.) With 30 original Portraits on steel, and upwards of 200 on wood; besides Autographs, Seals, Views, Genealogical and Titular Tables, and other illustrative subjects.

This work assumes that the information it contains is so illustrative of the Scottish nation, and of the origin and constitution of Scottish society, as to justify its adoption of the comprehensive and national title affixed to it.

In treating of Surnames it presents the elements of Norman, Saxon, Danish, and other races of the older settlements preserved in these individual, characteristic. It exhibits the formations of Families from the origin of the ascertained names of their founders, their distribution, their subdivisions, and their distinguished members since the time of Malcolm Canmore. It gives an account of the Baronies held by them, so associated with hereditary jurisdictions as to constitute the regalities of great social significance in the earlier centuries of this period. It furnishes an account of Scottish Titles in most instances indicative of greater power than even the Baronies, and, in later times, marks of personal honour and rewards of service.

But the Biographies of distinguished natives; they who have asserted for themselves a front rank among the leaders of mind and intellect in Europe in numbers unexampled in the social development of other nations; the pride and glory of Scotland, whose lives and deeds constitute the truest account of the Scottish nation; this is the chief feature of the Work. Written in a spirit of impartiality; with great attention to memoirs of literary men, and to specifications of their works; supplementing and throwing light upon Scottish History; this labour of many years on the part of the author is presented to the public as the book of the times. The Portraits with which it is embellished may be said to constitute it a National Portrait Gallery. Autographs, Seals, Genealogical and Titular Tables, lend interest to the text, and will gratify the curious in history, archaeology, and genealogy.—[Fullerton & Co.]

143. The Irish Nation:

Its History, and its Biography. By James Wills, D.D. Completed by Freeman Wills, M.A. Will be completed in Thirty Parts, price 2s. each, each Part containing at least six sheets of letter-press and one engraving. Will also be issued in Eight, Half Volumes, price 5s. 6d. each, or in Four Volumes, price 10s. each.

In the form of Biography "The Irish Nation" presents a succinct History of Ireland from the earliest ages of which any records remain that can be considered authentic and historical. Passing lightly over recollections, which, from lapse of time, had become faint; over uncertain memorials and exaggerations of Bardic fable; it seeks to arrive at true judgments on many subjects which have been misinterpreted by oppositions of sect and party,—an object the more important as that country has for ages been the arena of conflicts,—civil, religious and military,—so that no topic of national interest can be selected on which an opinion has been hazarded without having excited contradiction, and even denunciation.

The History of Ireland, as embodied in the Biographies in the "Irish Nation," is divided into three Periods, viz.:

I. EARLY.—From the Earliest Accounts to the Reign of Queen Elizabeth.

II. TRANSITION.—From Elizabeth to the Treaty of Limerick.

III. MODERN.—From the Treaty of Limerick to the Present Day.

In connecting the events recorded under these epochs, with the lives of the actors concerned therein, the convenience and instruction of the reader is accompanied by prefacing separate Historical Introductions, in which the succession and progress of time is, as far as possible, preserved.

To make "The Irish Nation" every way "worthy of public approbation, a Gallery of engraved Portraits of the more distinguished men whose lives are recorded in its pages, is given in the way of illustration. Early subjects for such, not heretofore known to exist, having been discovered, are now made public by the art of the graver; more modern ones are given with a fullness that leaves all previous collections at hopeless distance. To secure uniformity they are engraved under the eye of the same artist. The name of William Holl is a sufficient guarantee for their artistic execution.

Of it, therefore, the publishers may, with propriety, say "that it is one in which every native of Ireland will feel interested, not only on account of its literary merit, but as tending to supply an essential desideratum in the literature of his country."—(Fullerton & Co.)

144. Architecture and Building.

With Fourteen Papers on Relative Subjects. Robert Scott Burn, Architect General, Editor; H. S. Eyland and F. Lightbody, Architects, Joint Editors. Working Drawings and Designs. In 27 Parts, price 2s. each, size large folio, richly illustrated with woodcuts.

The chief object of this work is to present to the young Architect and to the intelligent Builder Large Scale Drawings, enabling either to work out in detail plans and designs extending over the whole wide range of structures now called for in every department of Architecture and Building.

These Drawings consist mainly of subjects—specially designed or obtained for it—by Architects and Engineers of extensive practice and name. The Plates are 27 inches by 30. They comprise Town, Suburban and Rural residences; Schools; Conservatories; Farm Buildings; Railway Stations; Bridges; Markets; Gas and Water Works; Mills; Breweries; Abattoirs; and kindred subjects less familiar and rarely given in works of this class.

In all these kinds of work there has been great progress of late years. Some have never yet been treated of in works of this kind. Roofs; Floors; Shop Fronts; Building contrivances of recent invention; Works in Draining, Ventilating, and Heating; and similar subjects will also be practically exhibited in these Drawings. The Scale is sufficiently large for practical purposes. The Details are one-fourth, one-sixth and often one-half full size.

The Letterpress will consist of Fourteen Papers, beautifully printed and richly illustrated. The principles which regulate and apply to all these subjects and phases are discussed and explained. The Materials worked with are described, and their combination and proper uses detailed. The preparation of Working Drawings is discussed, and the application to them of Geometrical principles shown. Specifications and other Directorics to the contractor and workman are treated of. Inventions at the Exhibition of 1882 are epitomized. Novelties presenting economy with strength, or with greater utility, are particularized. And finally, peculiarities in the Architecture of the Continent of Europe and of North America are exhibited and explained.

In the specialty of the designs shown there is, for the first time, a desideratum in this branch of practical class literature provided. The work will thus supply instruction and information of a kind not to be met with elsewhere.

145. Mechanical Engineering and Machine-Making.

With Twelve Papers on Relative Subjects. Robert Scott Burn, Agricultural Engineer, General Editor; W. Walker, A. B. Brown, F. Lightbody, and R. Davis, Joint Editors. Working Drawings and Designs. In 26 Parts, price 2s. each, size large folio, richly illustrated with woodcuts.

The chief aim of this work is to furnish to the Student of Scientific Engineering, as well as to the intelligent Tradesmen. Large Scale Drawings, mainly of subjects, specially designed or obtained for it, by Engineers and Mechanics of extensive practice and name.

These consist of Steam Engines, fixed and portable; Steam Engine Boilers; Steam Pump; Steam Cranes; Iron Work and Iron Framing; Machinery of Gas Works, Breweries, Mills, &c.; Agricultural Implements and Machines; Water-power Machines, Turbines and Pumps; Corn and Flour Mills; and Tools, or Machines used in mechanical construction.

In all these classes there has been great progress of late years. Some have never yet been treated of in works of this kind. In the Tool-making section the Punching and Cutting Lathes, and the Boring and Planing Machines show novelty of design with economy and convenience of working.

The scale is sufficiently large for practical purposes. The Details are one-fourth, one-sixth, and often one-half full size. The Plates are 27 inches by 30.

The Letterpress will consist of Twelve Papers, beautifully printed and richly illustrated—the Principles, Scientific and Mechanical, applicable to these departments of Engineering and Machine-making; and the class of Implement, Tool or Machine shown in drawing; and this whether as respects construction, framing, their or fitting-up, are carefully explained and simplified. The Materials employed, qualities and the processes of their manufacture, are, with more or less of detail, described. A notice of Machinery in the Exhibition of 1869,—taken from Reports by professional gentlemen intimately acquainted with the various branches—being the most complete and suggestive of any yet given to the public—embodies a great amount of detail useful to Locomotive and Marine Engineers, as well as to the Toolmaker, &c.

In the speciality of the designs shown there is, for the first time, a condensation in this branch of practical class literature provided. The work will thus supply instruction and information of a kind not to be met with elsewhere.—[Fullerton & Co.]

145. Masonry, Bricklaying and Plastering;

Theoretical and Practical. In Twenty Parts, at 2s., each containing eight engravings and sixteen to twenty-four pages of letterpress, with numerous woodcuts, size demy 4to.—[Fullerton & Co.]

147. Carpentry, General Framing and Joinery;

Theoretical and Practical. By Robert Scott Burn, Architect. In Eighteen Parts, at 2s., each containing eight engravings, and sixteen to twenty-four pages letterpress, with numerous woodcuts.

Within the last few years an original, bold, and comprehensive practice has been opened up in the various branches of the Building Arts, with fresh adaptations of materials and with ingenious appliances. Works therefore which shall present these most recent developments, in combination with the general principles of theory and practice, upon which operations in these respective branches are based, have now become necessary to the proper instruction of the modern mechanic.

Of the two New Guides above announced it may be stated generally, that they begin by treating of the various matters necessary to be known by the operatives in the branches of which they severally treat; go on to those important to young men seeking to qualify themselves to act as "Clerks of the Works" under Architects; proceed to those necessary to persons undertaking themselves constructive work; introduce under each topic the most recent improvements in practice; and in their proper places give dissertations upon those principles of the fixed sciences which are applicable to all the various processes treated of in the course of these works.

The selected examples of constructive art by exhibitors in the Paris Exposition of 1867 will be found not their least useful, novel, or interesting portions. For obtaining access to, and for reproducing these, the Editor of these works enjoyed special facilities. Information drawn from this source is distinguished by peculiar arrangements.

In the Carpenter's two original sections have been devoted to Geometrical Developments, the practical Construction of Staircases and Handrailing, and in that ample space in the body of the work and numerous plates are given on the most important departments of Terra Cotta and Artificial Stone-work.—[Fullerton & Co.]

148. The Poetical Works of Lord Byron;

With Illustrative Notes and a Memoir of the Author. By William Anderson, author of Landscape Lyrics, Scottish Nation, &c. In 3 vols. Imperial 8vo., rich cloth, gilt, gilt edges, price £3 5s.; or in 18 Parts, price 3s. each, or in 6 cloth Divisions, price 7s. 6d. each; illustrated with 74 steel engravings.

Of numerous collections of the poetical works of Lord Byron, the present claims to be the most carefully edited, the most elaborately annotated, the most beautiful in respect of type and materials, and the most richly and appropriately illustrated that has yet been given to the world. It is due to the greatest poet of his age, that the best edition of his poetry, which British art commands, should now be produced.

The present collection limits itself to the poetical writings of Lord Byron. Of these it contains all that have hitherto appeared in connection with his name, and were published in his lifetime, and discards prose writings, correspondences, journals, and other extraneous matter, so as to come out moderate in compass and price.

In 1803 there was published, in three quarto volumes, a series of engraved illustrations to these works, by Finden, of London, matchless alike in their fullness, authenticity, appropriateness, and execution. But they were expensive;—comprised much matter not illustrative of the poetry, but of the man;—were not conjoined in one book with those compositions they so worthily adorned;—could not, on account of their size and form, range with any collection of these writings;—and have long ceased to be obtainable on any terms.

This collection reproduces all the exquisite engravings of these superb quartos that illustrate these poetical writings themselves, as well as the most important of those having reference solely to his personal history, and it does this in a style and beauty not inferior to those in that unique publication. It is annotated in an appreciative spirit by a brother poet, who follows, with patient labour, all allusions to men and events, and strives to make the reader cognisant of the leading details of such allusions, especially those on which the noble author builds his lofty verse.

It contains a complete yet concise history of the Life of the Author, founded on a careful study of all sources of information up to the present day; the most perfect work of one whose life was mainly devoted to Biographical writings. It is beautifully printed on toned paper. On these grounds it presents its claims, asserted in our opening paragraph to be the richest and best collection of Byron's poetical works that has yet appeared—to be Drawing-Room Edition. Finally, these qualities considered, it is unquestionably the cheapest.—[Fullerton & Co.]

149. The Imperial Lexicon

Of the English Language, exhibiting the Pronunciation, Etymology, and Explanation of every word usually employed in Science, Literature, and Art. By the Rev. John Boag. With a comprehensive English Grammar, and directions for Pronunciation and Syllabication. In 2 volumes, Imperial 8vo., cloth, price £1 18s.; or in 16 Parts, price 2s. each; illustrated with 80 plates, embracing nearly 200 technical terms.—[Fullerton & Co.]

The Imperial Lexicon contains above 80,000 words, being double the number in the days of Johnson. It gives new meanings to many old words; as many learned scientific and technical terms as are needed to the understanding of the practical arts, the sciences, and every department of literature; and it exhibits derivations, primary, secondary, and present significations with conciseness and clearness. It also gives the pronunciation according to the system of Walker; a feature of great and obvious utility not found in modern compilations of this class.

Within the smallest practical limits it explains the terms in Natural History, Botany, Medicine, Chemistry, Astronomy, Geometry, Architecture, Heraldry, and the Mechanical Arts, according to the most approved and standard modern systems, and in the easiest and most simple language, serving in this respect many of the purposes of an Encyclopedia, and being more copious than any of the editions of Webster.

The Imperial Lexicon thus embodies the excellencies of all previous English dictionaries, for general value,—the excellencies of Webster, for clear and forcible explanation,—the excellencies of Walker, for pronunciation,—and the excellencies of the Cyclopaedia, for philosophical definition; and it may be pronounced at once a vocabulary, or universal word-book of the English language,—a glossary or expounder of rare terms,—and a thesaurus, or treasury of the gems of thought and the materials of knowledge.

A peculiar feature of the work is the engraved illustrations of terms in Science and Art, arranged in the order of the subjects, which presents advantages over woodcuts inserted in the text, as well in execution as by affording more detailed explanations appropriate to the figures.—[Fullerton & Co.]

150. The Faiths of the World.

An Account of all Religious Sects, their Doctrines, Rites, Ceremonies, and Customs. By the Rev. James Gardner, M.D. and A.M., with 48 Engravings, on Steel, of Singular and Important Religious Rites, Temples, &c. In 24 Parts, price 2s. each, or 8 Divisions, rich cloth, price 7s. 6d., each, or in 2 Volumes, price £2 12s.; also extra imperial 8vo.

On several of the departments embraced in this work treatises have been published during the last half-century both in Britain and on the Continent, but in the completeness of its design and the thoroughness of its execution "The Faiths of the World" has no competitor. Evans, Bellamy, Ross, and the authors of the Cyclopaedia of Religious Denominations and other similar works, embrace only the Christian sects; while "The Faiths," in addition to these, comprises Jewish, Mohammedan, and Pagan varieties of all ages and countries. The amount and accuracy of our knowledge in these latter departments has been greatly extended by recent researches; the changes in denominational christianity are numerous of late, and require to be noted; whilst the curiosity and interest of the public in the various faiths of the world has become more intense and practical.

By the adoption of the alphabetical arrangement easy reference is had to any subject on which information is desired, and opportunity is given for explanations of many ecclesiastical terms, offices, and titles. Biographical and historical sketches, of founders of religious sects or doctrines, and of the progress and vicissitudes of such views and tenets, are another feature of novelty in the work. The ramifications of christian worship, in doctrine, government, and practice, are described without prejudice or favour, from the accounts of parties holding these opinions. As respects the pictorial exhibition of rites and ceremonies, since the elaborate work of Picart, now scarce, expensive, and inaccurate, there has none appeared so richly, curiously, and faithfully illustrated by the art of the engraver. Testimonials from clergymen, missionaries, &c., amounting to several hundred in number, have been received as to the utility, faithfulness, and literary merits of the work.—[Fullerton & Co.]

"An extremely useful book. . . . It contains the cream of much more ponderous volumes, and possesses information that cannot be reached except by very few."—Letter from Rev. David Livingstone, the African Traveller.

"The definitions and explanations of words, which occur in the religious controversies of the present time, will be most useful, as the readers of this work will be enabled to arrive at a correct conclusion with respect to their true meaning in the earliest and purest ages of Christianity, without the trouble of turning to large and expensive works on Ecclesiastical History."—William Guine, M.A., Manchester, late Scholar of Trinity College, Dublin.

151. Self-Interpreting Bible.

The Imperial Edition by Brown. In 28 Parts, price 2s. each, illustrated with 56 original engravings.

The celebrated Family Bible, by the Rev. John Brown, of Haddington, unabridged; with above five thousand three hundred critical and explanatory notes, and comprehensive remarks on each book of Scripture, by his grandsons, the Revs. J. B. and A. S. Patterson. This edition is printed on superfine paper, of imperial quarto size. An illuminated representation of 'The Holy of Holies,' designed after the original text by W. B. Scott, is given in the concluding part.

In introducing a new edition of the Self-Interpreting Bible, the Publishers consider it unnecessary to say anything respecting the merits of that work. The unexampled popularity it has enjoyed, and the unexhausted demand for it which still makes new editions necessary, are recommendations that render all others superfluous.

With all the excellence of the work, however, and all the tokens of approbation it has received, the Publishers trust its value will be enhanced, and its acceptance increased, by the great additions now made in it to the author's text. The additional notes, which are carefully distinguished from those of the author, are suitable to the great object of his work—the edification of the unlearned. They are divested of all parade of erudition and reference to authorities, the weight of which an ordinary reader might not be able to appreciate; but are not the less to be regarded as the fruit of much study and research. The marginal references, which are more numerous, by several thousands, than those contained in any other edition, have undergone strict revision and verification; as also the Scripture references in the Commentary. Great attention has been paid to the text of the Commentary, and to the headings of the chapters, which have been purified from various errors that had crept into them in the course of successive editions, and been restored to the integrity of the original text.

This is by far the most accurate and full edition of Brown's Self-Interpreting Bible. In propriety of arrangement, beauty of typography and engravings, and comparative cheapness of price, it excels any other edition of this invaluable work. No mutilation, transposition or curtailment, of any part of the original Commentary, or Headings of Chapters, has been resorted to.—[Fullerton & Co.]

*. Every Subscriber who completes this work is entitled to a Presentation Plate. (See at end of this Catalogue.)

152. Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress.

And other Allegorical Works; with Macaulay's Essay on Bunyan. New and greatly improved edition, seventy-four original designs on steel. In 15 Parts, price 2s. each; or complete in one volume, demy 4to, cloth, price 32s.

A large and beautiful type, suited for all, distinguishes this from most other editions. Its great feature, however, is the surpassingly rich Series of Illustrations by David and W. B. Scott.

David Scott, like Bunyan, was original. He had that rare distinctness of conception, and rarer firmness in abstaining from technicalities, necessary to grasp the whole meaning of One who never adorns for adornment's sake; along with a simplicity suited to the grandeur of the author's idea.

His brother has well completed, in a similar spirit, what David began. The most minute details are studied and made harmonious in the conceptions of both.

In both Pilgrimages the Scenery is the same. Christiansa travels where Christian had travelled before her. It is the same city of Mansoul into which both Diabolus and Emmanuel make regal entrances. The allegorical character is sustained throughout by a cloud-land tone and treatment.

Vignettes, representing Bunyan at the periods, and in the circumstances, when his two great Dreams suggested themselves, and an elaborate Portrait, enrich and adorn the work.

Lord Macaulay's celebrated Essay, given by kind permission of his executors, appears in no other edition of Bunyan's works.—[Fullerton & Co.]

153. The Universe,

Or, The Infinitely Great and the Infinitely Little. A Sketch of Contrasts in Creation, and Marvels revealed and explained by Natural Science. By F. A. Foucault, M.D. Illustrated by 343 engravings on wood, of which 73 are full pages, and four coloured plates. Large 8vo, handsomely bound in cloth, gilt top, 31s. 6d.

"We can honestly commend this work, which is as admirably as it is copiously illustrated."
—Times.

"This is in every way a most delightful book."—Art Journal.

"We can heartily commend it."—Nature.

"A panoramic view of nature, rendered singularly effective by the combined skill both of pen and pencil."—Guardian.

"This volume, and it is a splendid one, will serve as a good pioneer to more exact studies. We have no doubt that it will find what it deserves, a popularity among English readers."
—Saturday Review.

These Tales are nearly five hundred in number, and are unexcelled in truthfulness and fidelity to truth, written in a glowing style of unexceptionable and inculcating most valuable lessons of morality and religion; the fascinating than the great mass of novels and romances by which the has been so woefully corrupted. No stories, since those of Sir Walter acquired such an immense popularity. In Great Britain they are well classes, and are familiar in many quarters as "household tales." In every form—humorous, pathetic, traditional, historical, and descriptive to every taste and mood of mind, and not less guarded from the giving offence to the nicest delicacy of sentiment than preserved from with the sanctioned creeds, prejudices, and feelings of party, whether religious. Its widely extended circulation, however, forms the best intrinsic merits, as well as the most legitimate justification of this record of it to the continued patronage of the public. It is a library in itself so low a price, as to come within the means of all.

"We are glad to find that these popular Tales are being reprinted here. In fact, for faithful delineations of character, for beauty of conception, and language, these Tales are almost unequalled. The price is remarkably low, too, a number, which places them within the reach of every class of readers."—Times.

"We have just received the numbers of a work which has acquired great popularity in Great Britain—Tales and Sketches Illustrative of the life and history of the Scotch. They are brief, but numerous, and written with singular fidelity to truth and in a style of great attractiveness and eloquence. They are entirely unexceptionable in tone, and embodying many of the most important events of English and Scottish history, imparting lessons of admirable aim, they will be apt to gain on this side the vast of that unprecedented popularity which they have enjoyed abroad."—Times.

"We have received the first numbers of this excellent and popular publication both pleasing and instructive, and have the merit of being free from that false sentimentality which disfigure most of the reading of the present day, as being to the morals as they are pleasing to the taste of the young. We can commend 'Tales' for the varied and lively interest which they possess for their true and pleasant of real life, and for their sentiments of virtue. We advise those who place an interesting and instructive work in their libraries, to subscribe for the series."

"This sterling collection of historical and traditional tales promises to surpass all long felt, by giving moral and instructive, historical and descriptive traditions, and sketches of life and character, free from the sickly sentimentalities so generally derived from modern novels. Well drawn scenes from real life, intended to enlarge the heart and inspire the understanding, while portrayments of the virtues of an ideal world, in which marvellousness constitutes the chief, reverse effect. We take pleasure in commending the 'Tales of the Borders.' (J. F. & Co.)
